

A weekly recap of events regarding Hanford's tank vapors

From the desk of Mark Lindholm, WRPS President:

Earlier this month, workers began wearing full-face air-purifying respirators (APRs) for specified tasks in Hanford's AP tank farm.

WRPS and HAMTC reached the joint decision after testing and analysis demonstrated that APRs fitted with chemical filter cartridges are effective for protecting workers from vapors in some areas during certain work activities in AP Farm.

Specifically, workers in the AP tank farm, working outside of a Vapor Control Zone while non-waste-disturbing and non-tank-intrusive activities are taking place, will have the option of wearing APRs instead of a Self-Contained Breathing Apparatus (SCBA) or other available supplied-air systems.

As always, workers will continue to have the option to use SCBA or other available supplied-air systems if they choose, so long as the equipment does not produce additional safety hazards.

The decision was shared broadly with the workforce in a series of briefings and an all-employee message prior to implementation of APRs. A new hanfordvapors.com webpage offers more information on the decision and associated equipment.
